THE MOST HIGH AND MIGHTY PRINCE, JAMES

BY THE GRACE OF GOD, KING of great Brittain, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c.

The translatours of the Bible, wish Grace, Mercy, and Peace, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Reat and manifold were the bleffings (most dread foveraigne) which almighty God, the Father of all mercies, bestowed upon us the people of England, when first he sent your Majesties Royall person to rule and reigne over us. For whereas it was the expectation of many, who wished not well unto our Sion, that upon the setting of that bright occidentall starre queen Eli-SABETH of most happy memory, some thick and palpable clouds of darknesse would so have overshadowed this land, that men should have been in doubt which way they were to walk, and that it should hardly be known, who was to direct the unfetled state: the appearance of your MAJESTIE, as of the some in his strength, instantly dispelled those supposed and surmised mists, and gave unto all that were well affected, exceeding cause of comfort, especially when we beheld the government established in your HIGHNES, and your hopefull feed, by an undoubted title, and this also accompanied with peace and tranquillitie at home and abroad.

But amongh all our joyes there was no one that more filled our hearts, then the bleffed continuance of the preaching of GoDs facred word amongh us, which is that inestimable treasure, which excelleth all the riches of the earth, because the fruit thereof extendeth it self, not onely to the time spent in this transitory world, but directeth and disposeth men unto that eternall happinesse which is above in heaven.

Then not to suffer this to fall to the ground, but rather to take it up, and to continue it in that state, wherein the famous predecessour of your HIGHNES did leave it: nay, to go forward with the confidence and resolution of a man in maintaining the truth of Chris, and propagating it farre and neare, is that which hath so bound and firmly knit the hearts of all your Majest it is to loyall and religious people unto you, that your very name is precious among them, their eye doth behold you with comfort, and they blesse you in their hearts, as that sanctified person, who under God, is the immediate authour of their true happinesse. And this their contentment doth not diminish or decay, but every day increaseth and taketh strength, when they observe that the zeal of your MAJESTIS, towards the house of GoD, doth not slack or go backward, but is more and more kindled, manifesting it self abroad in the furthest parts of Christendome, by writing in defence of the truth, (which hath given such a blow unto that man of sinne, as will not be healed) and every day at home, by resigious and learned discourse, by frequenting the house of GoD, by hearing the word preached, by cherishing the teachers thereof, by caring for the Church as a most tender and lo-

There are infinite arguments of this right Christian and religious affection in your Majesties but none is more forcible to declare it to others, then the vehement and perpetuated desire of the accomplishing and publishing of this work, which now with all humilitie we present unto your Majesties. For when your Highnesse had once out of deep judgement apprehended how convenient it was, that out of the originall sacred tongues, together with comparing of the labours, both in our own and other forcein languages, of many worthy men who went before us, thereshould be one more exact translation of the holy scriptures into the English tongue; your Majestie to urge and to excite those to whom it was commended, that the work might be hastened, and that the businesse might be expedited in so decent a manner, as a matter of such importance might justly require.

ving nurling Father.

And now at last, by the mercy of GoD, and the continuance of our labours. it being brought unto fuch a conclusion, as that we have great hope that the Church of England shall reap good fruit thereby; we hold it our duty to offer it to your MAJESTIE, not onely as to our king and foveraigne, but as to the principall mover and authour of the work: Humbly craving of your most facred MAJESTIE, that fince things of this quality have ever been subject to the censures of ill-meaning and discontented persons, it may receive approbation and patronage from so learned and judicious a prince as your HIGHNES is, whose allowance and acceptance of our labours, shall more honour and incourage us. then all the calumniations and hard interpretations of other men shall dismay us. So that, if on the one fide we shall be traduced by popish persons at home or abroad, who therefore will maligne us, because we are poore instruments to make Gods holy truth to be yet more and more known unto the people, whom they defirestill to keep in ignorance and darknesse: or if on the other side, we shall be matigned by felf-conceited brethren, who run their own wayes, and give liking unto nothing but what is framed by themselves, and hammered on their anvile: we may rest secure, supported within by the truth and innocency of a good conscience, having walked the wayes of simplicitie and integritie, as before the Lor D; and fustained without, by the powerfull protection of your MAJESTIES grace and favour, which will ever give countenance to honelt and Christian endeavours, against bitter censures, and uncharitable imputations.

The Lord of heaven and earth bleffe your Majestie with many and happy dayes, that as his heavenly hand hath enriched your Highnesse with many singular and extraordinary graces; so you may be the wonder of the world in this latter age, for happinesse and true felicitie, to the honour of that great God, and the good of his Church, through Jesus Christ our Lord and onely Saviour.

The beft shings have been calumniated.

EAL to promote the common good, whether it be by devising any thing our felves, or revising that which bath been laboured by others, deferveth certainly much respect and esteem, but yet findeth but cold entertainment in the world. It is welcomed with suspicion in stead of love, and with emulation in stead of thanks: and if there be any hole left for cavill to enter, (and cavill, if it do not finde an bole, will make one ) it is sure to be misconstrued, and in danger to be condemned. This will easily be granted by as many as know storie, or have any experience. For, was there ever any thing projected, that savoured any way of newnesse or renewing, but the same endured many a storm of gainsaying, or opposition? A man would think that civilitie, wholesome laws, learning and eloquence, synods, and Church-maintenance, (that we speak of no more things of this kinde) (bould be as safe as a sanctuarie, and lout of (bot, as they say, that no man would lift up his heel, no, nor dog move his tongue against "EE a CL. the motioners of them. Thus it is apparent, that these things which we speak of, are of most neceffarie use, and therefore that none, either without absurditie can speak against them, or without note of wickednesse can sourn against them.

Thus not onely as oft as we fleak, as one faith, but also as oft as we do any thing of note or confiquence, we subject our selves to every ones censure, and happie is he that is least to sed upon tongues; for utterly to escape the snatch of them it is impossible. If any man conceit that this is the lot and portion of the meaner fort onely, and that Princes are priviledged by their high efface, be is deceived. David was a worthy prince, and no man to be compared to him for his first deeds; and yet for as worthy an act as ever he did ( even for bringing back the ark of God in solemnitie) he was scorned and scoffed at by his own wife. Solomon was greater then David, 2,5am,6.16, though not in vertue, yet in power, and by his power and wisdome he built a temple to the Lord, such an one as was the glorie of the land of Ifrael, and the wonder of the whole world. But was that his magnificence liked of by all? we doubt of it. Otherwise, why do they lay it in his sonnes Noessel Ass-

Belike he had charged them with some levies, and troubled them with some carriages, bereupon they raise up a tragedie, and wish in their heart the temple bad never been built. So hard a thing it is to please all, even when we please God best, and do feek to approve our selves to every ones conscience.

For he that medleth with mens religion in any part, medleth with their custome, nay, with their free-hold; and though they finde no content in that which they have, yet they cannot abide to heare of altering. Notwithstanding his royall heart was not daunted or discouraged for this or that colour, but flood resolute, as a statue immoveable, and an anvile not easie to be beaten into Date 775 places, as one faith; he knew who had chosen him to be a fouldier, or rather a captain, and being asured that the course which he intended made much for the glorie of God, and the building up afeirsen of his Church, he would not suffer it to be broken off for what soever speeches or practises. It doth certainly belong unto Kings, yea, it doth specially belong unto them, to have care of religion, yea, avnaal G. to know it aright, yea, to professe it zealously, yea, to promote it to the uttermost of their power. This is their gloric before all nations which mean well, and this will bring unto them a farre most

The original thereof being from heaven, Plat priming not from earth; the authour being God, not man; the enditer, the holy Spirit, not the wit of the Apostles or Prophets; the penmen such as were sanctified from the wombe, and endued with a principall portion of Gods Spirit; the matter veritie, pietie, puritie, uprightnesse; the form, Gods word, Gods testimonie, Gods oracles, the word of truth, the word of salvation, &c. the effects, light of understanding, stablenesse of perswasion, repentance from dead works, newnesse of life, holinesse, joy in the holy Ghost; lastly, the end and reward of the studie thereof, fellow-(hip with the faints, participation of the heavenly nature, fruition of an inberitance immortall, undefiled, and that never shall fade away: Happie is the man that delighteth in the Scripture, and thrice happie that meditateth in it day and night.

But how shall men meditate in that which they cannot understand? How shall they understand that which is kept close in an unknown tongue? as it is written, Except I know the power of the 1. Cor. 14. voice, I shall be to him that speaketh a Barbarian, and he that speaketh shall be a Barbarian to me. The Apostle excepteth no tongue; not Hebrew the ancientest, not Greek the most copious, not Latine the finest. Nature taught a naturall man to confesse, that all of us in those tongues which Clem. Alex me do not understand, are plainly deaf; we may turn the deaf eare unto them. The Scythian Stients counted the Athenian, whom he did not understand, barbarous: so the Romane did the Syrian, Dama in and the Jew, (even S. Hierome himself calleth the Hebrew tongue barbarous, belike because it Michael. was strange to so many ) so the Emperour of Constantinople calleth the Latine tongue barba- Theophilips. rous, though Pope Nicolas do form at it: fo the Jews long before Christ, called all other nations Tom Confil. Therefore as one complaineth that almayes in Cab. the Senate of Rome, there was one or other that called for an Interpreter: fo left the Church be Ceero & defdriven to the like exigent, it is necessarie to have translations in a readinesse. Indeed without translation into the vulgar tongue, the unlearned are but like children at Jacobs well (which was deep) without a bucket or something to draw with: or as that person mentioned by Blay, to whom when Ma. 29.11. a fealed book was delivered, with this motion, Reade this, I pray thee, he was fain to make this answer, I cannot, for it is fealed.

This is the translation of the Seventie interpreters, commonly so called, which prepared the way for our Saviour among the Gentiles by written preaching, as S. John Baptift did among the Jews by vocall. For the Grecians being defrous of learning, were not wont to suffer books of worth to lie moulding in kings libraries, but had many of their fervants, readie scribes, to copie them out, and so they were differed and made common. Again, the Greek tongue was well known and made famihar to most inhabitants in Asia, by reason of the conquests that there the Grecians had made, as also by the colonies, which thither they had sent. For the same causes also it was well understood in many places of Europe, yea, and of Africk too. Therefore the word of God being fet forth in Greek, becometh bereby like a candle set upon a candlestick, which giveth light to all that are in the house; or like a proclamation sounded forth in the market place, which most men presently take knowledge of; and therefore that language was fittest to contain the Scriptures, both for the first preachers of the Gospel to appeal unto for witnes, and for the learners also of those times to make fearch and triall by. It is certain, that that translation was not (o found and so perfect, but that it needed in many places correction; and who had been fo sufficient for this work as the Apostles or apostolike men? Yet it seemed good to the holy Ghost and to them, to take that which they found, (the same being for the greatest part true and sufficient) rather then by making a new, in that new morld and green age of the Church, to expose themselves to many exceptions and cavillations, as though they made a translation to serve their own turn; and therefore bearing witnesse to themfelves, their mitnesse not to be regarded. This may be supposed to be some cause, why the translation of the Seventie was allowed to passe for currant. Notwithstanding, though it was commended generally, yet it did not fully content the learned, no not of the Jews. For not long after Chrift, Aquila fell in band with a new translation, and after bim Theodotion, and after bim Symmachus: yea, there was a fifth and a fixth edition, the authours whereof were not known. Thefe with the Seventie made up the Hexapla, and were worthily and to great purpose compiled together by Origen. Hombeit the edition of the Seventiement away with the credit, and therefore not onely was placed in the midst by Origen ( for the worth and excellencie thereof above therest, as Epiphanius gathereth) but also was used by the Greek Fathers for the ground and foundation of their commentaries. Yea, Epiphanius abovenamed doth attribute so much unto it, that he hold-See S. Tet for all that, as the Egyptians are faid of the Prophet to be men and not God, and their horses stefh and not spirit: so it is evident, (and S. Hierome affirmeth as much) that the Педоппий. Sevencie were interpreters, they were not Prophets; they did many things well, as learned men; correpta but yet as men they flumbled and fell, one while through overlight, another while through ignoell Twee- rance; yea, sometimes they may be noted to adde to the originall, and sometimes to take from it; Dan dons which made the Apostles to leave them many times, when they left the Hebrew, and to deliver the fense thereof according to the truth of the word, as the Spirit gave themulterance. This may suffice touching the Greek translations of the Old Testament.

There were also within a few hundred yeares after Christ, many translations into the Latine Translation tongue: for this tongue also mas very fit to convey the law and the gospel by, because in those out of He tongue: for this tongue also may very in to convey ine can and the golpet by, because in those brew and times very many countress of the west, yea of the South, East, and North, spake or understood Greek into Latine, being made provinses to the Romanes. But now the Latine translations were too many to Latine. be all good: for they were infinite (Latini interpretes nullo modo numerari pollunt, faith S. Augu-Rine.) Again, they were not out of the Hebrew fountain ( we feath of the Latine translations of the Old Testament) but out of the Greek stream; therefore the Greek being not altogether cleare, the Latine derived from it must needs be muddy. This moved S. Hierome, a most learned Father, and the best linguist without controversie, of his age, or of any that went before him, to undertake the translating of the Old Testament out of the very fountains themselves; which he performed with that evidence of great learning, judgement, industry, and faithfulnesse, that be hath for ever bound the Church unto him in a debt of speciall remembrance and thank sulnesse.

The translating of the feripture into the vulgar songues.

Now though the Church were thus furnished with Greek and Latine translations, even before the faith of Christ was generally embraced in the Empire: (for the learned know, that even in S. Hieromes time, the Conful of Rome and his wife were both Ethnicks, and about the same time S. Hieron. the greatost part of the Senate also) yet for all that the godly learned were not content to have Marcellthe Scriptures in the language which themselves understood, Greek and Latine, (as the good le-Zosim. persivere not content to fare well themselves, but acquainted their neighbours with the flore 2. King. 7.9 that God had fent, that they also might provide for themselves) but also for the behoof and edifring of the unlearned which hungred and thirsted after righteousnesse, and had souls to be saved as well as they, they provided translations into the vulgar for their countrey-men, infomuch that most nations under beaven did shortly after their conversion, heare Christ peaking unto them in their mother tongue, not by the voice of their minister onely, but also by the mritten word translated. If any doubt hereof, he may be satisfied by examples enow, if enow will serve the turn. First, S. Hietome faith, Multarum gentium linguis Scriptura ante translata, docet falla S. Chryost.in felle as much. So S. Chryfostome that lived in S. Hieromes time giveth evidence with him: The Jam. cap. t. doctrine of S. John (farth he) did not in fuch fort (as the Philosophers did) vanish away: but the Hom. 1. Syrians, Egyptians, Indians, Persians, Ethiopians, and infinite other nations being barbarous people, translated it into their (mother ) tongue, and have learned to be (true) Philosophers, he meaneth Christians. To this may be added Theodoret, as next unto him, both for antiquitie, and Theodor. 5. for learning. His words be these, Every countrey that is under the sunne, is full of these words. Theraseut. ( of the Apostles and Prophets) and the Hebrew tongue (he meaneth the Scriptures in the He-12. brew tongue) is turned not onely into the language of the Grecians, but also of the Romanes, Ifidor in Chron. and Egyptians, and Persians, and Indians, and Armenians, and Scythians, and Sauromatians, Gath and briefly into all the languages that any nation useth. So be. In like manner, Ulpilas is report eapsy. ed by Paulus Diaconus and Ilidore ( and before them by Sozomen) to have translated the Scri- vastem in Chrom ptures into the Gothick tongue: John Bessop of Sivil by Vasseus, to have turned them into Ara-Hisan. bick, about the geare of our Lord 717: Beda by Cistertiensis, to have turned a great part of Polidar Ving. 5. them into Saxon: Estard by Trithemius, to have abridged the French Palter, as Beda had done historous to have abridged the French Palter, as Beda had done with the best of the Saxon turned the Palt. the Hebrew, about the yeare 800. King Alured by the fard Ciftertienfis, to have turned the Pfal-iden de Aluroter into Saxon: Methodius by Aventinus (printed at Ingolftad) to have turned the Scriptures do roftro. into Sclavonian: *Valdo, Biftop of Friling by Beatus Rhenanus, to have caused about that time, durain lib.4. the Gasbels to be translated into Dutch rithme, yet extrast in the library of Carbinian. Valdue "Orea annone." the Gospels to be translated into Dutch rithme, yet extant in the library of Corbinian: Valdus on B.Rhenon-by divers to have turned them himself, or to have gotten them turned into French, about the renun Gennen. yeare 116c: Charles the fifth of that name, surnamed The wife, to have caused them to be turned lib. 2into French, about 200 yeares after Valdus his time, of which translation there be many copies Beroald. yet extant, as witnesserh Beroaldus. Much about that time, even in our King Richard the seconds Thum. dayes, John Trevisa translated them into English, and many English bibles in written band are yet to be seen mith divers, translated, as it is very probable, in that age. So the Syrian translation of the New Testament is in most learned mens libraries, of Widminstadius his setting forth; and the Pfalter in Arabick is with many, of Augustinus Nebiensis setting forth. So Postel affirmeth, that in his travell he saw the Gospels in the Ethiopian tongue: And Ambrose Thesius alledgeth the Pfatter of the Indians, which be testifieth to have been set forth by Potken in Syrian characters. So that, to have the Scriptures in the mother tongue is not a quaint conceit lately taken up, either by the Lord Cromwellin England, or by the Lord Radevil in Polonie, or by the Lord Unanadius in the Emperours dominion, but hath been thought upon, and put in prastife of old, even from the first times of the conversion of any nation; no doubt, because it was esteemed most profitable, to cause faith to grow in mens hearts the sooner, and to make them to be able to say with the words of the Pfalme, As we have heard, so we have seen.

Now the Church of Rome would seem at the length to bear a motherly affection towards her The unwilchildren, and to allow them the Scriptures in the mother tongue: but indeed it is a gift, not de-our chiefadferving to be called a gift, an unprofitable gift: they must first get a licence in writing before they versaries, that may use them; and to get that, they must approve themselves to their Confessor, that is, to be the scriptures fuch as are, if not frozen in the dregs, yet sowred with the leaven of their superstition. Yea, so unwilling they are to communicate the Scriptures to the peoples understanding in any fort, that they are not ashamed the 4. his mato confesse, that we forced them to translate it into English against their wills. This seemeth to argue a bad cause, or a bad conscience, or both. bout the translation so long in hand, or rather perusals of translations made before: and ask and reasons, what may be the reason, what the necessitic of the employment: Hath the Church been deceived, both of our far ther, all this while? Hath her sweet bread been mingled with teaven, her silver with drosse, of our adverher wine with water, her milk with lime? ( Lacte gyplum male miscetur, suith S. Ireney ) we faries against hoped that we had been in the right may, that we had bad the Oracles of God delivered unto this work. us, and that though all the world had cause to be offended, and to complain, yet that we had none. Hath the nurse holden out the breast, and nothing but winde in it? Hath the bread been delivered by the Fathers of the Church, and the same proved to be lapidosus, as Seneca speaketh? what is it to handle the word of God deceitfully, if this be not? Thus certain brethren. Also the adzersaries of Judah and Hierusalem; like Sanballat in Nehemiah, mock, as we heare, both at the mork and workmen, Jaying, What do these weak Jews, &c. will they make the stones whole again out of the heaps of dust which are burnt? although they build, yet if a fox go up, he shall even break down their stonie wall. was their translation good before? why do they now mend it? was it not good? Why then was it obtruded to the people? Yea, why did the Catholicks (meaning Popels Romanists) alwayes go in Jeopardie, for refuling to go to heare it? Nay, if it must be translated into English, Catholicks are fittest to do it. They have learning, and they know when a thing is well, they can manum de tabula. We will answer them both briefly: And the former, being brethren, thus, with S. Hierome, Damnamus veteres? Minime, fed post priorum studia in domo Domini quod possumus laboramus. That is, Do we condemne the ancient? In no case: but after the endeavours of them that were before us, we take the best pains we can in the house of God. As if he said, Being provoked by the example of the learned that lived before my time, I have thought it my dutie, to affay whether my talent in the knowledge of the tongues, may be profitable in any measure to Gods Church, lest I should seem to have laboured in them in vain, and left I should be thought to glorie in men, (although ancient) above that which was in them. Thus S. Hierome may be thought to feak.

And to the same effect say me, that we are so farre off from condemning any of their labours A fatisfaction that travelled before us in this kinde, either in this land or beyond sea, either in K. Henries to our bretime, or K. Edwards (if there were any translation, or correction of a translation in his time) thren. or Qu. Elisabeths of ever renowned memorie, that we acknowledge them to have been raised up of God, for the building and furnishing of his Church, and that they deserve to be had of us and of posteritie in everlasting remembrance. The judgement of Aristotle is worthy and well known: If Timotheus had not been, we had not had much fiveet mulick: but if Phrynis (Timotheus his master) had not been, we had not had Timotheus. Therefore bleffed be they, and most honoured be their name, that break the ice, and give the onset upon that which belieth forward to the saving of souls. Now what can be more available thereto, then to deliver Gods book unto Gods people in a tongue which they understand? Since of an hidden treasure, and of a fountain that is sealed, there is no profit, as Ptolomee Philadelph wrote to the Rabbins or masters of the fews, as witnesseth Epiphanius: and as S. Augustine faith, A man had rather be with his dog then with a stranger (whose tongue is strange unto him.) Yet for all that, as nothing is begun and perfected at the same time, and the latter thoughts are thought to be the wifer : so, if we building upon their foundation that ment before us, and being holpen by their labours do endeavour to make that better which they left so good; no man, we are sure, bath cause to mislike us; they,

Aquila, of whom we spake before, translated the hible as carefully, and as skilfully as be could; and yet be thought good to go over it again, and then it got the credit with the Jews, to be called nar anpigerar, that is, accurately done, as S. Hierome witnessetb. How many books of profane learning have been gone over again and S. Hierom in again, by the same translatours, by others! Of one and the same book of Aristotles Ethicks, there Erech cap 3. are extant not (o few as fix or seven severall translations. Now if this cost may be bestowed upon the gourd, which affordeth us a little [hade, and which to day flourisheth, but to morrow is cut down; what may we bestow, nay what ought we not to bestow upon the vine, the fruit whereof maketh glad the conscience of man, and the stemme whereof abideth for ever? And this is the word of God which we translate. What is the chaffe to the wheat, faith the Lord? Tanti vitre- Jer. 22.28. um, quanti verum margaritum (faith Tertullian) if a toy of glaffe be of that reckoning with Tertulad Marus, how ought we to value the true pearl! Therefore let no mans eye be evil, because his Maje- tr. sties is good; neither let any be grieved, that we have a Prince that seeketh the increase of the Si cani vilisaspiritual wealth of Israel; stee Sanballars and Tobiahs do so, which therefore do bear their just suami pressreproof ) but let us rather bleffe God from the ground of our heart, for working this religious fiffmammacare in him, to have the translations of the bible maturely considered of and examined. For by garium Hier. this means it cometh to paffe, that what sever is found alreadie ( and all is found for substance, ad Salvin. in one or other of our editions, and the worst of oursfarre better then their authentick vulgar) the same will shine as gold more brightly, being rubbed and polished; also, if any thing be halling, or superfluous, or not fo agreeable to the originall, the same may be corrected, and the truth set in place. And what can the King command to be done, that will bring him more true honour then this? and wherein could they that have been fet a work, approve their dutie to the King, yea their obedience to God, and love to his Saints more, then by yeelding their fervice, and all that is within them, for the furnishing of the work? But besides all this, they were the principall motives of it, and therefore ought least to quarrell it. For the very historicall truth is that upon the importunate petitions of the Puritanes, at his Majeffies coming to this crown, the conference at Hampton Court having been appointed for hearing their complaints: when by force of reason they were put from all other grounds, they had recourse at the last, to this shift, that they could not with good conscience subscribe to the Communion book, since it maintained the bible as it was there translated, which was, as they faid, a most corrupted translation. And although this was judged to be but a very poore and emptie shift, yet even hereupon did his Majeflie begin to bethink himself of the good that might ensue by a new translation, and presently after gave order for this translation which is now presented unto thee. Thus much to satisfic our Crupulous bretbren.

An answer to ons of our adversaries.

Now to the latter we answer, That we do not denie, nay we affirm and avow, that the very the imputation meanest translation of the bible in English, set forth by men of our profession (for me have seen none of theirs of the whole bible as yet ) containeth the word of God, nay, is the word of God. As the Kings speech which be uttered in Parliament, being translated into French, Dutch, Italian, and Latine, is fill the Kings speech, though it be not interpreted by every translatour with the like grace, nor peradventure fo fitly for phrase, nor so express for fense, every where. For it is confessed, that things are to take their denomination of the greater part; and a natural man could fay, Verum ubi multa nitent in carmine, non ego paucis offendor maculis, &c. A Horaci. man may be counted a vertuous man, though he have made many flips in his life, (else there were none vertuous, for in many things we offend all) also a comely man and lovely, though he have James 3. 2; Some warts upon his hand; yea, not onely freckels upon his face, but also scarres. No cause therefore why the word translated should be denied to be the word, or forbidden to be currant, notwithstanding that some imperfections and blemishes may be noted in the setting forth of it. For what ever was perfect under the funne, where Apostles or apostolike men, that is, men endued with an extraordinarie measure of Gods Spirit, and priviledged with the priviledge of infallibilitie, had not their hand? The Romanists therefore in refusing to heare, and daring to burn the word translated, did no leffe then despite the Spirit of grace, from whom originally it proceeded, and whose sense and meaning, as well as mans weaknesse would enable, it did expresse. Judge by an example or two. Plutarch writeth, that after that Rome had been burnt by the Galls, they Pintodin fell soon to build it again: but doing it in haste, they did not cast the streets, nor proportion the Camillo. houses in such comely fashion, as had been most sightly and convenient: was Catiline therefore an honest man, or a good patriot, that sought to bring it to a combustion? or Nero a good Prince, that did indeed fet it on fire? So, by the fory of Ezra, and the prophefie of Haggai it may be gathered, Ezra 3.12. that the temple built by Zerubbabel after thereturn from Babylon, may by no means to be com-

Fixed to the former built by Solomon (for they that remembred the former, wept when they confidered the later ) notwith fanding, might this later either have been abhorred and for saken by the Jews, or profaned by the Greeks? The like we are to think of translations. The translation of the Seventie diffenteth from the Original in many places, neither doth it come near it, for perspicuity, gravitie, majestie; yet which of the Apostles did condemne it? Condemne it? nay, they used it, (as it is apparent, and as S. Hierome and most learned men do confesse ) which they would not have done, nor by their example of using of it, so grace and commendit to the Church, if it had been unmorthy the appellation and name of the word of God. And whereas they urge for their second defence of their vilifying and abusing of the English bibles, or some pieces thereof, which they meet with, for that heretikes (forfooth) were the authours of the translations, (heretikes they call us by the Same right that they call themselves catholikes, both being wrong) we marvell what divinity Tenull de pra- taught them so. we are sure Tertullian was of another minde: Ex personis probamus fidem, an ex fide personas!Do we trie mens faith by their persons? we should try their persons by their faith. Also S. Augustine was of another minde: for he lighting upon certain rules made by Tychonius & Donatist, for the better understanding of the mord, was not asbamed to make use of them, yea, to de doct. Christ. insert them into his own book, with giving commendation to them so far forth as they were worthy to be commended, as is to be feen in S. Augustines third book De doctr. Christ. To be short, Origen, and the whole Church of God for certain hundred yeares, were of another minde : for they were so farre from treading under foot (much more from burning) the translation of Aquil2 a Proselyte, that is, one that had turned Jew, of Symmachus and Theodotion, both Ebionites, that is, most vile heretikes, that they joyned them together with the Hebrew Original, and the translation of the Seventic (as hath been before fignified out of Epiphanius ) and fet them forth openly to be considered of, and perused by all. But we weary the unlearned, who need not know so much; and trouble the learned, who know it alreadie.

Yet before me end, we must answer a third cavill and objection of theirs against us, for altering and amending our translations so oft, wherein truely they deal hardly and strangely with us. For to mbom ever mas it imputed for a fault (by such as were wise) to go over that which be had & August. Epist. 9. done, and to amend it where he saw cause? S. Augustine was not afraid to exhort S. Hierome to a Palinodia or recantation: the same S. Augustine was not ashamed to retract ate, we might S. Aug. lib. say, revoke, many things that had passed him, and doth even glorie that he seeth his infirmities. Retractat. If we will be sonnes of the truth, we must consider what it speaketh, and trample upon our own Wideo interdum credit, yea, and upon other mens too, if either be any way an hinderance to it. This to the cause. vitia mea. S. Aug-Epit. 8. Then to the persons we say, that of all men they ought to be most silent in this case. For what varieties have they, and what alterations have they made, not onely of their service-books, portesses, and breviaries, but also of their Latine translation! The service-book supposed to be made Dorand lib. 5, by S. Ambrose (Officium Ambrosianum) was a great while in speciall use and request: but Pope eap. 3, Hadrian calling a councell with the aid of Charles the Emperour, abolished it, yea, burnt it, and commanded the service-book of S. Gregorie universally to be used. well, Officium Gregorianum gets by this means to be in credit; but doth it continue without change or altering? No, the very Romane service was of two fashions; the new fashion, and the old, (the one used in one church, the other in another) as is to be seen in Pamelius a Romanist, his preface before Micrologus. The same Pamelius reporteth out of Radulphus de Rivo, that about the yeare of our Lord 1277, Pope Nicolas the third removed out of the churches of Rome, the more ancient books (of service) and brought into use the missals of the Friars Minorites, and commanded them to be observed there; insomuch that about an hundred yeares after, when the abovenamed Radulphus happened to be at Rome, he found all the books to be new, of the new stamp. Neither was there this chopping and changing in the more ancient times onely, but also of late: Pius Quintus himself confesseth, that every bishoprick almost had a peculiar kinde of service, most unlike to that which others bad; which moved him to abolish all other breviaries, though never so ancient, and priviledged and published by Bishops in their diocesses, and to establish and ratific that onely which was of his own setting forth, in the yeare 1568. Now when the Father of their Church, who gladly would heal the fore of the daughter of his people softly and sleightly, and make the best of it, findeth so great fault with them for their ods and jarring, we hope the children have no great cause to vaunt of their uniformitie. But the difference that appeareth between our translations, and our often correcting of them, is the thing that we are specially charged with; let us see therefore whether they themselves be without fault this way, (if it be to be counted a fault, to correct) and whether they be fit men to throw stones at us: O tandem major parcas infane minori : they that are lesse found themselves, ought not to object infirmities to others. If we should tell them that Valla, Stapulensis, Erasmus, and Vives, found fault with their vulgar translation, & consequently wished the same to be mended, or a new one to be made; they would answer peradventure that we produced their enemies for witnesses against them; albeit, they were in no other sort enemies, then as S. Paul was to the Galatians, for telling them the truth: and it were to be wished, that Galatians. they had dared to tell it them plainlier and oftener. But what will they say to this, that Pope Leo the tenth allowed Erasmus translation of the New Testament, so much different from the vulgar, by his apostolike letter and buil: That the same Leo exhorted Pagnin to translate the whole Bi- Sixtus Serens ble, and bare whatfoever charges was necessarie for the work? Surely, as the Apostle reasoneth to the Hebrews, that if the former Law and Testament had been sufficient, there had been no Heb. 7.11. need of the latter: so we may say, that if the old vulgar had been at all points allowable, to small and 8.7. purpose had labour and charges been undergone, about framing of a new. If they say, it was one Popes private opinion, and that he consulted onely himself; then we are able to go further with them, and to averre, that more of their chief men of all forts, even their own Trent champions, Paiva and Vega, and their own inquisitor Hieronymus ab Oleastro, and their own Bishop Isidorus Clarius, and their own Cardinal Thomas a vio Caictan, do either make new translations themselves, or sollow new ones of other mens making, or note the vulgar interpreter for halting none of them fear to diffent from him, nor yet to except against him. And call they this an uniform tenour of Text and judgement about the text fo many of their morthies disclaiming the now received conceit? Nay, we will yet come nearer the quick: doth not their Paris-edition differ from the Lovain, and Hentenius his from them both, and yet all of them allowed by authoritie? Nay, doth not Sixeus Quintus confesse, that certain Catholikes ( he meaneth certain of Sixtus ? Pres his own side) were in such an humour of translating the Scriptures into Latine, that Satanta-fina biblio king occasion by them, though they thought of no such matter, did strive what he could out of so uncertain and manifold a varietie of translations, so to mingle all things, that nothing might seem to be left certain and firm in them, &c? Nay further, did not the same Sixtus ordain by an inviolable decree, and that with the counsel and consent of his Cardinals, that the Latine edition of the Old and New Testament, which the councel of Trent would have to be authentick, is the same without controverse which he then set forth, being diligently corrected and printed in the printing-bouse of Vatican? Thus Sixtus in his preface before his Bible. And yet Clement the 8 his immediate successour to account of, publisheth another edition of the Bible, containing initinfinite differences from that of Sixtus, (& many of them meighty and material) and yet this must be authentick by all means what is to have the faith of our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with yea and nay, if this be not? Again, what is sweet harmonie and consent, if this be? Therefore, as Demaratus of Corinth advised a great King, before he talked of the diffentions among the Grecians, to compose his domestick broils (for at that time his queen and his sonne and heir were at deadly fuide with him) so all the while that our adversaries do make so many and so various editions themselves, and do jarre so much about the worth and authority of them, they can with no shew of equitie challenge us for changing and correcting.

The purpole tours, with care, &c.

But it is bigh time to leave them, and to shew in brief what we proposed to our selves, and of the transla- what course we held in this our perusall and survey of the Bible. Truely (good Christian Reader) we never thought from the beginning that we should need to make a new translation, nor yet to their number, make of a bad one a good one, (for then the imputation of Sixtus had been true in some sort, that our people had been fed with gall of dragons in stead of wine, with wheal in stead of milk) but to make a good one better, or out of many good ones, one principall good one, not justly to be excepted against; that hat's been our endeavour, that our mark. To that purpose there were many chosen, that were greater in other mens eyes then in their own, and that fought the truth rather then their own praise. Again, they came or were thought to come to the work, not exercendi causa, (as one faith) but exercitatisthat is, learned, not to learn: For the chief overfeer and spoolionty under his Majestre, to whom not onely we, but also our whole Church was much bound, knew by his wisdome, which thing also Nazianzen taught so long ago, that it is a preposterous order to teach Nation . first, and to learn after; yea that to en the xxegular wardiner, to learn and practife together, is eis by neither commendable for the workman, nor safe for the work. Therefore such were thought upon, Emon nages as could fay modestly with S. Hierome, Et Hebræum sermonem exparte didicimus, & in Latino Lieu in Apopene ab ipfis incunabilis, &c. detriti fumus; Both we have learned the Hebrew tongue in part, and loger. in the Latine we have been exercised almost from our very cradle. S. Hierome maketh no mention of the Greek tongue, wherein yet be did excell; because he translated not the Old Testament out of Greek, but out of Hebrew. And in what fort did these assemble? In the trust of their own knowbedge, or of their sharpnesse of wit, or deepnesse of judgement, as it were in an arm of sich? At no band. They trusted in him that bath the key of David, opening and no man shutting; they prayed to the Lord the Father of our Lord, to the effect that S. Augustine did; Olet thy Scriptures be S. Hierome affirmeth, and Gratian hath not spared to put it into his Decree, that as the credit of the old books ( he meaneth of the Old Testament ) is to be tried by the Hebrew volumes; so of the New by the Greek tongue, he meaneth by the Originall Greek. If truth be to be tried by these tongues, then whence should a translation be made, but out of them? These tongues therefore, the Scriptures we say in those tongues, we set before us to translate, being the tongues wherein God mas pleased to speak to his Church by his Prophets and Apostles. Neither did we run Joeph. Asig. over the work with that posting haste that the Septuagint did, if that be true which is reported in 12. of them, that they finished it in seventic two days, mither more made in the days. of them, that they finished it in seventie two dayes; neither were we barred or hindered from going over it again, having once done it, like S. Hierome, if that be true which himself reporteth, that he could no fooner write any thing but prefently it was caught from him, and published, and be could not have leave to mend it: neither, to be short, were we the first that fell in band with translating the Scripture into English, and consequently destitute of former helps, as it is written of Origen, that he was the first in a manner, that put his hand to write commentaries upon the Scriptures, and therefore no marvell, if he overshot himself many times. None of these things: the work bath not been hudled up in seventie two dayes, but bath cost the workmen, as light as it seemeth, the pains of twice seven times seventie two dayes, and more. Matters of such weight and consequence are to be speeded with maturitie: for in a businesse of moment a man feareth not the blame of convenient flacknesse. Neither did we think much to consult the translatours or commentators Chaldee, Hebrew, Syrian, Greek, or Latine, no nor the Spanish, French, Italian, or Dutch; neither did we diffain to revise that which we had done, and to bring back to the anvil that which we had hammered but having and using as great helps as were needfull, and fearing no reproach for flownesse, nor coveting praise for expedition, we have at the length, through the good hand of the Lord upon us, brought the work to that paffe that you fee.

tie of the Scriptures for deciding of controversies by that shew of uncertaintie, should somewhat diversity of be flaken. But we hold their judgement not to be fo found in this point. For though, Whatfoever fenfes in the things are necessarie, are manifest, as S. Chrysostome faith: and as S. Augustine, In those margine, things that are plainly fet down in the Scriptures, all fuch matters are found that concern faith, where there Silva. share partly to exercise and whet our bability for wits, partly to wean the curious from loathing of them for their everywhere plainnesse, partly also each to stirre up our devotion to crave the assistance of Gods Spirit by prayer, and lastly, that we might be forward to feek aid of our brethren by conference, and never scorn those that be not in all respects so compleat as they should be, being to seek in many things our selves, it hath pleased God in his divine providence, here and there to scatter words and sentences of that difficultie & doubtfulnesse, not in doctrinal points that concern falvation (for in such it bath been vouched that the Scriptures are plain) but in matters of lesse moment, that fearfulnes would better beseem us then confidence, and if we will refolve, to refolve upon modefie with S. Augustine, (though not in this same case altogether, yet upon the same ground) Melius est dubitare de occultis, quam litigare de incertis: It is better to make doubt of those things which are secret, then to Brive about those things that are uncertain. There be many words in the Scriptures which be never found there but once, (having neither brother nor neighbour, as the Hebrews speak) so that we cannot be holpen by conference of places. Again, there be many rare names of certain birds, beafts, and precious stones, &c. concerning which the Hebrews themselves are so divided among themselves for judgement, that they may seem to have defined this or that, rather because they would say something, then because they were sure of that which they said, as S. Hierome somewhere saith of the Septuagint. Now in such a case, doth not a margine do well to admonish the Reader to seek further, and not to conclude or dogmatize upon this or that peremptorily? For as it is a fault of incredulitie, to doubt of those things that are evident; so to determine of such things as the Spirit of God hath left (even in the judgement of the judicious) questionable, can be no lesse then pre-3. Aug. 2. de sumption. Therefore as S. Augustine saith, that varietie of translations is profitable for the finding out of the sense of the Scriptures: so diversitie of fignification and sense in the margine, where the text is not so clear, must needs do good; yea, is necessarie as we are persuaded. We know that Sixtus 5. pref. Sixtus Quintus expressly forbiddeth that any varietie of readings of their vulgar edition, should be put in the margine (which though it be not altogether the same thing to that we have in hand, vet it looketh that way) but we think he hath not all of his own side his favourers, for this conceit. Plat in Paulo. They that are wife had rather have their judgements at libertie in differences of readings, then to be captivated to one, when it may be the other. If they were fure that their high priest had all ouosomaches. Lum: shut up in his breast, as Paul the second bragged, and that he were as free from errour by speciall priviledge, as the Distators of Rome were made by law inviolable, it were another matter; then his word were an oracle, his opinion a decision. But the eyes of the world are now open, God be thanked, and have been a great while, they finde that he is subject to the same affections and infirmities that others be, that his bodie is subject to wounds, and therefore so much as he proveth, not as much as he claimeth, they grant and embrace.

Reasons iroutly upon an iden ity of phrasing.

An other thing we think good to admonish thee of (gentle reader) that we have not tied our ducing us not felves to an uniformity of phrasing, or to an identitie of words, as some peradventure would wish that we had done, because they observe, that some learned men somewhere, have been as exact as they could that way. Truely that we might not vary from the sense of that which we had translated before, if the word signified the same thing in both places (for, there be some words that be not of the same sense every where) we were especially carefull, and made a conscience, monthly use according to our dutie. But that we should expresse the same notion in the same particular word; as for example, if we translate the Hebrev or Greek word once by putpole, never to call it intent; if one where journeying, never travelling; if one where think, never suppose; if one where pain, never ache; if one where joy, never gladnefic, &c. Thus to mince the matter, we thought to savour more of curiositie then wisdome, and that rather it would breed scorn in the Atheist, then bring profit to the godly reader. For is the Lingdome of God become words or syllables? why foould we be in bondage to them if we may be free? use one precisely, when we may use another no lesse fit, as commodiously? A godly Father in the primitive time showed himself greatly moved that one of newfangleneffe called nea Blarer on wares, though the difference be little or none; and A bed another reporteth, that he was much abused for turning cucurbita ( to which reading the people Niceth. Califihad been used) into hedera. New if this happen in better times, and upon so small occasions, we lib & cap. 42might justly fear hard censure, if generally we should make verball and unnecessarie changings. S. Hiromin 4. We might also be charged (by scotters) with some unequal dealing towards a great number of good due, coil, see English words. For as it is written of a certain great Philosopher, that he should say, that those logs were happy that were made images to be wor shipped; for their fellows, as good as they, lay for blocks behinde the fire: so if we should say, as it were, unto certain words, Standup higher, have a place in the Bible alwayes; and to others of like qualitie, Get ye hence, be banished for ever: we might be taxed peradventure with S. James his words, namely, To be partiall in our felves, and judges of evil thoughts. Adde bereunto that nicenesse in words was alwayes counted responsible. the next step to trisling, and so was to be curious about names too : also that we cannot follow a addressia. better pattern for elocution then God himself; therefore he using divers words, in his holy writ, no woods. and indifferently for one thing in nature: we, if we will not be superstitious, may use the same li- Lew will bertie in our English versions out of Hebrew and Greek, for that copie or flore that be hath orougnor. given us. Lastly, me have on the one side avoided the scrupulositie of the Puritanes, who leave Sec Euseb. the old Ecclesiasticall words, and betake them to other, as when they put washing for baptisme, wordegeand congregation in Read of Church: as also on the other side, we have shunned the obscuritie of onev. the Papiffs, in their azymes, tunike, rationall holocaufts, prepuce, palche, and a number of such lib.13.en Pla like, whereof their late translation is full, and that of purpose to darken the sense, that since they were must needs translate the Bible, yet by the language thereof, it may be kept from being understood. But we desire that the Scripture may speak like it self, as in the language of Canaan, that it may be understood even of the very vulgar.

Many other things we might give thee warning of (gentle reader) if we had not exceeded the measure of a preface already. It remaineth that we commend thee to God, and to the Spirit of his grace, which is able to build further then we can ask or think. He removesh the scales from our eyes, the vail from our hearts, opening our wits that we may understand his word, enlarging our hearts, yea correcting our affections that we may love it above gold and filver, yea that we may love it to the end. Ye are brought unto fountains of living water which ye digged not; do not cast Gen. 26. 15: earth into them with the Philistines, neither preferre broken pits before them with the wicked Jerom. 2.13. 3 And Moles by the commandment of the Lond, fent them from the wildernesse of Paran: all those men were heads of the children of Ifrael.

4 And these were their names: Of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the sonne of Zacchur.

5 Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the sonne of Hori.

6 Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the sonne of Jephunneh.

7 Of the tribe of Islachar, Igal the sonne of Toleph.

8 Of the tribe of Ephraim, Ofhea the fonne of Nun.

Not for thy righteoulnesse, or for the uprightnesse of thine heart dost thou go to posfesse their land: but for the wickednesse of these nations the LORD thy God doth drive them. out from before thee, and that he may perform the word which the L o R D sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

6 Understand therefore, that the LORD thy God giveth thee not this good land to polfesse it, for thy righteousnesse; for thou art a

1 The Canaanites are afraid, 2 Joshua reneweth circumcision. 10 The passeover is kept at Gilgal.
12 Manna ceaseth. 13 An Angel appeareth to Joshua.

Nd it came to paffe when all the kings A of the Amorites, which were on the fide of Tordan west-ward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the fea, heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel untill we were paffed over, that their heart melted; neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Ilrael.

2 At that time the Lond faid unto Jo-Or, knives shua, Make thee | * sharp knives, and circumcife again the children of Ifrael the second time.

3 And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcifed the children of Ifrael at the | hill DUE, Gibeaha of the fore-skinnes.

> And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcife: All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of warre died in the wildernesse by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

> 5 Now all the people that came out, were circumcifed : but all the people that were born in the wildernesse by the way, as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumcifed.

> 6 For the children of Israel walked fourty yeares in the wilderneffe, till all the people that were men of warre which came out of Egypt were confumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD fivare that * he would not shew them the land which the L o R D Sware unto their fathers that he would give us, a land that floweth with milk and hony.

> 7 And their children, whom he raifed up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcifed, because they had not circumcifed them by the way.

8 And it came to passe t when they had done circumcifing all the people, that they abode in Heb. when their places in the camp, till they were whole. the perple

12 ¶ And the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land, neither had the children of Ifrael manna any more, but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that yeare.

13 9 And it came to passe when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lift up his eyes and looked, and behold, there flood * a man over against * Exod 21. him, with his fword drawn in his hand; and Jo- 23. thus went unto him, and faid unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

14 And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the LORD hearkened unto the voice of a man: for the LORD fought for Israel.

15 ¶ And Johua returned, and all Ifrael with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

16 But these five kings fled, and hid themfelves in a cave at Makkedah. 17 And it was told Johna, faying, The five Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, & the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to passe when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of warre, which went with him, Come neare, put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came neare, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

25 And Joshua said unto them, Fear not nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage: for thus shall the LORD do to all your enemies against whom ye fight.

26 And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them on five trees: and they were hanging upon the trees until the evening.

27 And it came to passe at the time of the going down of the sunne, that Joshua commanded, and they * took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the caves mouth, which remain until this very day.

28 ¶ And that day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, them, and all the souls that were therein, he let none remain: and he did to the king of Makkedah, * as he did unto the king of Jericho.

29 Then Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto Libnah, and fought against Libnah.

30 And the Load of livered it alfo, and the king thereof, into the hand of lirael, and he fmote it with the edge of the fword, and all the fouls that were therein: he let none remain in it, but did unto the king thereof, as he did unto the king of Jericho.

31 ¶ And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamp-

32 And the Lor of delivered Lachish into the hand of lifted, which took it on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, according to all that he had done to Libnah.

33 ¶ Then Horam king of Gezer, came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining.

34 ¶ And from Lachish, Joshua passed unto Eglon, and all Israel with him, and they encamped against it, and sought against it.

35 And they took it on that day, and fmore it with the edge of the fword, and all the fouls that were therein he utterly deftroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish.

36 And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto Hebron, and they fought agginft it.

37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the fword, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and all the fouls that were therein: he left none remaining (according to all that he had done to Eglon) but deftroyed it utterly, and all the fouls that were therein.

38 q And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him to Debir, and fought against it.

39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and they smore them with the edge of the sword, and utterly defroyed all the souls that were therein, he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof, as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king.

40 ¶ So Johua fmote all the countrey of the hills, and of the fouth, and of the vale, and of the fprings, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but utterly deftroyed all that breathed, as the LORD God of Ifrael *commanded. * Deut 202

Then the king of Affyria came up throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria, and befieged it three yeares.

6 9 In the ninth yeare of Hoshea, the *Chap.18.10 king of Affyria took Samaria, and carried Ifrael avvay into Affyria, and placed them in Halah and in Habor by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

7 For fait was, that the children of Ifrael had sinned against the LORD their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of E. gypt, and had feared other gods,

8 And walked in the statutes of the heathe children of Ilrael) and of the kings of Ifrael, which they had made.

9 And the children of Israel did secretly those things that were not right, against the LORD their God, and they built them high places in all their cities, from the tower of the watchmen, to the fenced city.

10 And they fet them up timages & groves t Heb. Ad in every high hill, and under every green tree:

11 And there they burnt incense in all the high places, as did the heathen whom the LORD carried away before them; and wrought wicked things to provoke the LORD to anger.

14 Notwithstanding, they would not heare, but * hardened their necks, like to the neck of *Dent.31. their fathers, that did not beleeve in the LORD

15 And they rejected his statutes, and his covenant that he made with their fathers, and his testimonies which he testified against them, and they followed vanity, and became vain, and went after the heathen that mere round about them, concerning whom the LORD had charged them, that they should not do like them.

Baal.

14 And they caused their sonnes and their daughters to passe through the fire, and used divination and inchantments, and fold themselves to do evil in the fight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

18 Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his fight, there was none left but, the tribe of Judah onely.

19 Alfo Judah kept northe commandments of the LORD their God, but walked in the statutes of Ifrael which they made.

20 And the LORD rejected all the feed of Ifrael,

Israel, and afflicted them, and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, until he had cast them out of his fight.

21 For he rent Israel from the house of David, and they made Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat king, and Jeroboam drave Israel from following the LORD, and made them sinne a great sinne.

22 For the children of Israel walked in all the sinnes of Jeroboam which he did, they deof his fight, as he had faid by all his fervants the prophets: To was Ifrael carried away out of their own land to Affyria, unto this day.

24 ¶ And the king of Affyria brought men from Babylon, and from Cuthah, and from Ava, and from Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria, in flead of the children of Ifrael; and they policifed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof.

25 And so it was at the beginning of their dwelling there, that they feared not the LORD; therefore the LORD sent lions among them, which flew fome of them.

26 Wherefore they spake to the king of Assyria, saying, The nations which thou hast removed, and placed in the cities of Samaria, know not the manner of the God of the lands therefore he hath sent lions among them, and behold, they slay them, because they know not the manner of the God of the land.

27 Then the king of Affyria commanded, faying, Carry thither one of the priests whom ye brought from thence, and let them go and dwell there, and lethirn teach them the manner of the God of the land.

28 Then one of the priefts whom they had carried away from Samaria, came and dwelt in Beth-el, and taught them how they should fear the LORD.

2.9 Howbeit, every nation made gods of their own, and put them in the houles of the high places which the Samaritanes had made, every nation in their cities wherein they dwelt,

30 And the men of Babylon made Succothbenoth, and the men of Cuth made Nergal, and the men of Hamath made Alhima,

31 And the Avites made Nibhaz and Tartak, and the Sepharvites burnt their children in fire to Adrammelech, and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim.

32 So they feared the LORD, and made unto themselves of the lowest of them priests of the high places, which scriffeed for them in the houses of the high places,

33 * They feared the LORD, and ferved their own gods, after the manner of the nations, || whom they carried away from thence, 34 Unto this day they do after the former manners: they fear not the LORD, neither do they after their flatutes; or after their ordinances; on after the law and commandment which the LORD commanded the children of Jacob, * whom he named I frael; * Gen. 32.28 and he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies.
